Before You Dial: Mortgage-Specific Principles

Aged mortgage leads are different from aged insurance leads. The prospect's situation — rates, home values, their credit, their employment — may have genuinely changed since they inquired. Use that to your advantage.

Mortgage script principles:

- Reference rate movement (up or down — both create urgency)
- Never quote a specific rate on the first call — offer to "run their scenario"
- Ask about their timeline, not just their interest
- Pre-qualify conversationally, not like a loan application
- Always include your NMLS number in written communications

PHONE SCRIPTS

1. Purchase Lead Opener

> "Hi [Name], this is [Your Name] with [Company], NMLS [number]. You were looking into a home purchase a while back, and I wanted to check in. Are you still house hunting, or did you already find a place?"

If still looking: "Great — what's been the biggest challenge? Finding the right home, or getting comfortable with the financing?"

If found a home: "Congrats! Did you already lock in your financing, or are you still shopping lenders? I ask because I've been able to beat initial quotes for a lot of my clients — even at this stage."

If stopped looking: "Totally understand. Market's been tricky. Out of curiosity, what made you pause — was it pricing, rates, or just life getting in the way? [Let them answer.] Things have actually shifted since then. Would it be worth 5 minutes to see where you'd stand today?"

2. Refinance Lead Opener

> "Hi [Name], this is [Your Name] with [Company]. You looked into refinancing your mortgage a while ago, and I know rates have been all over the place since then. I wanted to see where things stand for you — are you still thinking about it?"

Rate-environment language that works regardless of market:

- Rates have dropped: "Rates have come down since you first looked, and I think the numbers might work now even if they didn't before."
- Rates have risen: "I know rates aren't where anyone wants them, but depending on your current rate and situation, there may still be a smart play — cash-out, shorter term, or dropping PMI."
- Rates are flat: "Rates have stabilized, which actually gives us a cleaner picture of what makes sense. Sometimes the best refi decisions happen in a stable market."

3. DSCR / Investor Loan Opener

> "Hi [Name], this is [Your Name] with [Company]. I see you were looking into financing for an investment property. I specialize in investor loans — DSCR, bank statement, asset-based programs — and I wanted to check in. Are you still looking at properties, or did you already close on something?"

If active: "What type of property are you targeting — single-family, multi-unit, short-term rental? And do you have a property under contract, or are you still looking? I ask because I can get you a pre-approval letter that works with your investment strategy."

4. Follow-Up Call (After Previous Attempt)

> "Hi [Name], it's [Your Name] calling back from [Company]. I reached out [yesterday / earlier this week] about your mortgage inquiry. I pulled some rough numbers based on what you were looking for, and I think there's a good option here. Do you have a couple of minutes? I promise I'm not going to ask for your social security number on this call — just a conversation."

The light humor about SSN works because it addresses the unspoken fear that the call will turn into a loan application. It sets them at ease.

VOICEMAIL SCRIPTS

5. Voicemail — First Attempt

> "Hey [Name], this is [Your Name] with [Company], NMLS [number]. I'm calling because you inquired about a [home purchase / refinance] a while back, and I wanted to see if the timing might be better now. Rates have shifted and there are some new programs I think you should know about. My number is [number] — I'll text it to you too. Hope to hear from you."

6. Voicemail — Rate Hook

> "Hi [Name], it's [Your Name] from [Company]. Quick message — I ran some numbers for someone in a similar situation to yours in [state], and the payment came in lower than they expected. I'd love to see if the same applies to you. No application needed, just a quick conversation. [Number]. Talk soon."

7. Voicemail — Final Attempt

> "Hi [Name], it's [Your Name] from [Company] — this is my last call. I've been trying to connect about your mortgage inquiry, and I understand if the timing isn't right. Here's what I'd say: save my number — [number]. Whether it's next month or next year, > when you're ready to make a move on a [home purchase / refinance], I'll find you the best rate available. No expiration on that. Take care."

OBJECTION HANDLING

8. "I'm already working with a lender."

> "That's great — having a lender is the right first step. Can I ask, have you locked your rate yet? [If no:] Okay, so you're still in a position to compare. Here's what I'd suggest — let me run your scenario independently. If I can beat what they've offered, you have leverage either way. If I can't, you'll know you're getting a good deal. Either way you win. Fair?"

> [If yes, already locked:] "Smart move. I'll make a note — when's your lock expiration? If anything changes or you need a backup option, I'm a phone call away. And for your next purchase or refi, keep my number handy."

9. "Rates are too high right now."

> "I hear that a lot, and honestly, compared to two years ago, you're right — they're higher. But here's the thing: [For purchase:] home prices are actually [leveling off / offering more negotiation room] because of those rates. Buyers who move now are competing against fewer people. The play is: buy at today's price, refinance when rates come down. You marry the house, you date the rate. [For refi:] it depends on what you're trying to accomplish. If it's a cash-out to consolidate debt at 22% interest into a mortgage at 7%, the math still works in your favor. Want me to run your specific scenario?"

10. "I don't think I'll qualify."

> "I appreciate you being upfront about that. Here's what I've found — about half the people who tell me they won't qualify actually do, because there are more programs than most people realize. FHA, VA, bank statement loans, asset-based programs, even credit repair pathways that take 60-90 days. Can I ask a couple of questions to see where you stand? No credit pull needed for a preliminary look."

11. "I need to talk to my spouse / partner."

> "Absolutely — this is a joint decision, and I'd actually love to include them. What if we set up a quick 15-minute call with both of you? I can walk you through the numbers together so you're on the same page. What day works best?"

12. "Just send me the rates."

> "I wish I could give you a one-size-fits-all rate sheet, but mortgage rates are really specific to your situation — credit, down payment, property type, loan amount. What I can do is run your scenario in about 5 minutes and send you a custom rate quote that's actually accurate. Can I ask you a few quick questions to get that started?"

PRE-QUALIFICATION QUESTIONS SCRIPT

13. Conversational Pre-Qual (Use After Building Rapport)

> "Great — let me ask you a few quick questions so I can give you accurate numbers. This isn't an application — I'm just trying to get us in the right ballpark."

1. "Are you looking to purchase or refinance?"
2. Purchase: "Do you have a property in mind, or are you still looking? What price range?" / Refi: "What's your current rate, and roughly what do you owe?"
3. "What area are you looking in?" (state + county matters for rates)

4. "How much are you looking to put down?" / "Do you have equity you'd like to tap into?"
5. "Is this your primary residence, second home, or investment property?"
6. "Employment — are you W-2 salaried, self-employed, or a mix?"
7. "Ballpark — where's your credit score? Above 740, 700-740, or below 700?"
8. "Is there a timeline you're working with?"

> "Perfect — that gives me everything I need to pull together real numbers for you. Can I call you back [tomorrow / later today] with a couple of options?"

Note: Never ask for SSN, DOB, or run credit during the first conversation. The goal is to build trust and qualify — the application comes after they choose to work with you.

TEXT MESSAGE TEMPLATES

14. First Contact Text

> "Hi [Name], this is [Your Name] from [Company] (NMLS #[number]). You inquired about a [mortgage / refinance] a while back — I'd love to run some updated numbers for you. No application needed. Text me back if you're interested!"

15. Rate Update Text

> "Hey [Name], rates moved this week and I thought of you. Depending on your situation, there may be a better option now than when you first looked. Want me to run your numbers? Quick and easy — just reply YES."

16. Pre-Approval Text

> "[Name], if you're still house hunting, I can get you a pre-approval letter in as fast as 24 hours. That gives you negotiating power when you find the right place. Want to get > started? It takes about 15 min."

17. Social Proof Text

> "Just helped a [first-time buyer / homeowner] in [area] lock in at [X]% with only [X]% down. If you're still in the market, I'd love to see what I can do for you. — [Your Name], [Company]"

18. Break-Up Text

> "Hi [Name], I've reached out a few times about your mortgage inquiry — I'll stop here. If you ever want to check rates or get a pre-approval, save my number. No expiration. Best of luck! — [Your Name]"

EMAIL TEMPLATES

19. First Contact Email

Subject: "Following up on your mortgage inquiry"

> Hi [Name],
> I'm reaching out because you inquired about a [home purchase / refinance] a while back. I'm not sure if you found what you were looking for, but I wanted to introduce myself in case you're still exploring.
> I'm a loan officer with [Company], and I specialize in finding the best rate and program for each client's specific situation. Whether it's conventional, FHA, VA, jumbo, or something more specialized, I work with multiple lenders to get the best deal.
> If you have 5 minutes this week, I'd love to run your scenario — no application needed, no credit pull, just a conversation.

> [Your Name] [Company] | NMLS #[number] [Phone]

20. Market Update Email

Subject: "Mortgage market update for [state/area] — [Month Year]"

> Hi [Name],
> Quick market update since you were looking into a [home purchase / refi]:
> - Rates this week: [General range — e.g., "30-year conventional around X%"]
> - What's changed: [1-2 sentences on market movement]
> - What this means for you: [Purchase: "Monthly payment on a $XXX,000 home is roughly $X,XXX" / Refi: "If you're currently at X%+, the savings could be significant"]
> I'm not sending this to push you into anything — just keeping you informed so when the timing is right, you can move fast.
> Want me to run your specific numbers? Reply here or call/text me at [number].
> [Your Name]

21. Objection-Preemptive Email

Subject: "You don't need perfect credit to get a mortgage"

> Hi [Name],
> One of the biggest reasons people pause their home purchase or refi search is credit concerns. I get it — there's a myth that you need a 750+ score to get a good mortgage.
> The reality:
> - FHA loans: Available down to 580 credit score (and sometimes lower with compensating factors)
> - VA loans: No minimum score requirement from the VA itself
> - Conventional: 620+ with competitive rates at 700+

> - Non-QM programs: Bank statement, asset-based, and DSCR loans for self-employed and investors
> Whatever your situation, there's probably a path forward. I've helped people who were told "no" by other lenders get to the closing table.
> If credit was what held you back, let's talk. No judgment, just solutions.
> [Your Name] [Company] | NMLS #[number]

22. Break-Up Email

Subject: "Closing your mortgage file"

> Hi [Name],
> I've reached out a few times about the [home purchase / refinance] you were looking into. Since I haven't heard back, I'll close your file.
> But here's my standing offer: whether it's next month, next year, or when rates hit a number you like — reach out. I'll find you the best deal available at that time. Save this email or my number: [phone].
> Wishing you the best, [Your Name] [Company] | NMLS #[number]

Rate Language That Works in Any Market

The biggest mistake mortgage LOs make with aged leads is apologizing for rates. Instead, use language that reframes rates as context, not a barrier.

Situation	What to Say
Rates are high	"Rates are higher than they were, but competition is lower — that means more negotiating power on price. Buy now, refi later."
Rates are dropping	"Rates have come down since you first looked — this might be the window you were waiting for."
Rates are flat	"The market has stabilized, which is actually a great time to lock in — no more guessing games."

Client has a high current rate	"If you're sitting at [X]% or above, even a small reduction could save you hundreds per month."
Client has a low current rate	"Your rate is solid — but if you need cash for [renovation / debt consolidation / investment], a cash-out refi at today's rates could still make sense depending on the math."

Universal closer for any rate conversation:

> "Here's what I always tell people: I can't control rates, but I can control finding you the absolute best rate available for your situation, today. Let me prove it."
